American Smelting Official Says Ja pan is Buying Heavily.

The decision means that the aces acres of land involved can now be sold by the state to the persons who made application for it, and it leaves the state free to select thousands of acres of other similarly situated lands in different parts of the state and sell the same for grazing and agricultural purposes. Had the decision of the local land office been sustained, large areas of land would have been exempted from appropriation and sale under the mineral laws of the country. It means, also, that coal lands to be held as such must be of a character that it can be profitably mined.
